

Abstract of the Disclosure

A coupling arrangement for different models of semiconductor device testers manufactured by different manufacturers but capable of testing the same semiconductor device, the arrangement comprising: a mother board connectable to test heads of the different models of testers, respectively; and a device under test (DUT) board connectable between the mother board and a semiconductor device to be tested by one of the different models of tester.